

How Beautiful Is She

By Sa'Niya Whitfield

Alliteration

Simile/Metaphor

With brown skin

1

And eyes as green as can be

She's like a tree

What separates her from the others is her uniqueness

She's so subtly seeded in with the rest

And she hides

Behind her sturdiness and strength

5

When really,

She's a force to be reckoned with underneath

With me she does everything but that

She is truly a beautiful flower

Hidden by the tough exterior

Her perfection

Is beautiful to me

I see her for what she is

And she sees me

My god,

How beautiful is she
